

PLAN BUSINESS CONFERENCE FOR STOCK PROBLEMS

First of Series of "Clinics"
Held at White House
Today

PRESIDENT LEADING
Every Phase of Nation's Business to Be Brought Under Scrutiny

By George R. Holmes
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—A series of business clinics intended to provide an antidote for the attack of commercial colic brought on by too much stock gorging, opened at the White House this morning with President Hoover occupying the role of chief diagnostician.

Today's conference, first of a series that will bring every phase of the nation's activity under rapid scrutiny during the next ten days, brought a dozen railroad leaders to the White House to discuss with Mr. Hoover their problems, and to hear from him what measures he believes should be taken at this time to restore the public confidence that is essential to prosperity.

The president pointed out to his guests that the Federal Government already has shown the way—by decreeing a material reduction in personal and corporate income taxes, and by deciding to enormously increase the public buildings program in the emergency.

The cumulative effect of these Federal steps is bound to be beneficial, in Mr. Hoover's opinion, and he suggested to the railroad presidents that they can contribute greatly to the result by following the Government's example in their own building and expansion activities.

The railroads' annual bill for new equipment and improvements is approximately $1,000,000,000 in ordinarily good times. Due to the collapse in security prices and a slight falling off of business, many railroads have been curtailing somewhat their equipment purchases and expansion plans.

Such retrenching at a time like this cannot but help to contribute to the general decline of business, Mr. Hoover pointed out, for the railroads are the greatest users of steel, cement and other commodities, to say nothing of labor, and what the railroads are doing is reflected in almost every phase of the nation's business activity.

Mother and Daughter Injured in Auto Crash

Mrs. Victor Girard and daughter were slightly injured yesterday afternoon when the sedan operated by Mr. Girard struck a parked car in South Langhorne as the machine with the trio attempted to pass a truck.

Mr. Girard and wife and daughter were enroute from South Langhorne to their home in Bristol Township when the accident occurred. As Girard made his way around a truck he did not notice that a car was parked on the left side of the roadway and he crashed into it.

JOHN KEELEY VICTIM OF APOPLEXY; AGED 62

Prominent Resident of Croydon Dies After Only Few Days' Illness

A NATIVE OF ENGLAND

CROYDON, Nov. 19.—A prominent and highly respected resident and business man died here yesterday after an illness of but a few days, when John Keeley was fatally stricken with apoplexy at his home, Cedar avenue and Main street. He was 62 years of age.

Mr. Keeley was a native of England but came to the United States when a baby with his parents.

The deceased was engaged in the lumber, building materials and machinery business, and he furnished most of the lumber for the early development of this village. At that time he was engaged in business at Frankford, Philadelphia.

Three and one-half years ago he married Mrs. Charles T. de St. Aubin, of Croydon. The marriage ceremony was the first one ever performed by Edward Lynn, justice of the peace, and it took place in Mr. Lynn's office in the Forrest Theatre, now the Grand Theatre, Mill street and the Highway, Bristol.

Mr. Keeley is survived by his widow and children of a former marriage.

The deceased was a member of the Croydon Chamber of Commerce.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at noon at the late residence of the deceased, and burial will be made in Arlington Cemetery, Philadelphia.

Joseph Ryan, of Bloomfield, N. J., recently visited with Mr. Ryan's brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Smith, of 149 Otter street.

PLANE TALK

By HARRY A. SUTTON
Of the Technical Staff,
The Aviation Corporation (Written Expressly for International News Service)

17. The Tail Spin

A maneuver strictly in the stunt class, the tail spin has some practical value in schooling pilots how to come out of it once in it unintentionally.

It results from a stall in which the airplane is permitted to turn while kept in a stall by holding the elevator up. Thus the dropping machine, instead of nosing direct for the ground, will twist 'round and 'round in spirals, tail above nose. There are many methods of using the controls to start a tail spin but all of them depend on stalling the airplane in some manner.

The spin may be stopped, however, by pushing the elevator control forward and using the rudder to assist in stopping the rotation. This will arrest the spin and restore the plane to straight dive from which level flight may be resumed by using (raising) the elevator as in coming out of an ordinary dive.

Beginners involuntarily fall into spins usually because of excessive climbs or from banking too steeply and climbing on turns, particularly from gliding at too slow an air speed. In the latter eventuality, the altitude may be too low to permit recovery.

DELIGHTED TO HEAD BOY SCOUT CAMPAIGN

By Senator Clarence J. Buckman
Chairman, Boy Scout Campaign

"I am delighted to have the opportunity of assisting the Boy Scout movement in Bucks county. I want to volunteer to serve in any capacity in which I can be of the greatest usefulness to the Scouts. You have given me a big job which I should not think of undertaking without knowing that I will have the united support of all Bucks county citizens."

"I believe in the ideals and program of scouting. I consider it one of the greatest programs for character building, leadership training, citizenship development and Americanization in the country."

Mr. Pollock paid a great tribute to Connie Mack, as a real sportsman, also Burt Shotton, manager of the "Phillies," and the late Robert (Tiny) Maxwell, former editor and football referee. He also told a number of humorous stories that had the crowd roaring. At the conclusion, the meeting was voted a very pleasing affair.

STATE PATROL IN DRIVE AGAINST UNINSPECTED CARS

Fifty-Three Arrests Made At South Langhorne On Saturday

TO CONTINUE THE DRIVE

Every Car to Be Watched
Along the Highways Until December 15th

State highway patrolmen are waging a campaign against drivers of motor vehicles which have not been inspected. Numerous arrests have been made and fines imposed. In Bristol the police are checking up on the operators of such vehicles and are taking into custody those who do not have the sticker attached to their vehicles.

Two arrests have been made locally by the Bristol police.

The dead line for the 45-day period of inspection ended midnight Friday, and the entire organization of the Bucks County Patrol was put in the checking work early Saturday.

Working under the direction of Sergeant James J. Tooley, commander of the Doylestown District, the patrolmen lost no time in halting machines which did not bear the little yellow inspection tags.

In the South Langhorne section, Corporal Welsh and four patrolmen, arrested 53 autoists in less than eight hours. Some of them were fined $12.50 each by a nearby justice of the peace, and the others will be summoned to appear for hearings later in the week. Each will be fined $10 and costs.

At the Edison station, which is near Doylestown, patrolmen under the direction of Corporal Engle, arrested 29 violators, some of whom were fined. The others will be summoned.

All the principal roads were patrolled by the troopers. When a car approached that did not bear the inspection label, the owner was ordered to stop and then questioned. If he was unable to prove that the car was properly inspected, in accordance with the regulations of the Pennsylvania State Motor Vehicle Commissioner, the driver was ordered to take his car to the nearest garage, where the patrolman watched until the machine was inspected. Then the operator was either fined by a justice of the peace or ordered to appear for a trial later in the week.

In most cases the troopers were so busy that they did not have enough time to wait for arraignment of the drivers but instead, took the license numbers for future summons.

The inspection will continue unabated until December 15.

The autoists accepted the dictates of the order with mingled feelings, Sergeant Tooley said. Some were resentful, many were resigned to their fate, but all showed annoyance. Many were the excuses offered for failure to display the yellow stickers on the windshields of their machines.

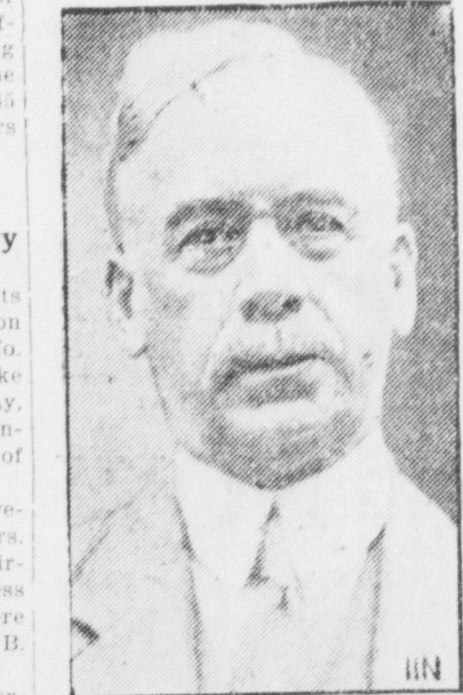

One autoist wrathfully declared that he could not get his car inspected because he was repairing it. But Sergeant Tooley was willing to be shown. He called up the garage where the repairing was said to have been done and there he was informed that the car

JAILER'S ASSAILANT IS SEEKING PARDON

McGee, Who Nearly Killed
Keeper Myers, Appeals To State Board

WAS IN JAIL BREAK

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 19.—James J. McGee, the penitentiary convict, who engineered a jail break for himself and two others from the Bucks County Prison in October, 1924, at which time McGee murderously assaulted Head Keeper Grant Myers, is seeking a pardon.

His case will come up before the Board of Pardons today and will not be contested by the Bucks county authorities.

"I hear McGee no ill will," said Head Keeper Myers this morning, "and at the request of the penitentiary authorities, who say McGee has been a good prisoner, wrote a letter to that effect. He has already served five of the remaining years of his earlier sentence and started this year on a sentence of six years for assaulting me at the time of the jail break."

McGee, at the time of his capture after breaking jail, assumed sole responsibility for the jail break, but denied that he had assaulted Myers with any sort of weapon other than a bunch of keys. The testimony, however, showed that he lacerated Myers' head with a heavy shoe last, inflicting serious injuries.

Myers' escape from death, it was said, was probably due to the appearance of another prisoner, Walter Meyers, serving time for horse stealing, who came to his rescue.

Against the prisoner, Meyers, a

Four Months in Prison for

Expensive Appetite

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 19.—Three years ago, Joseph B. Sweet, Jr., a radio mechanic, married Sarah Elizabeth Turner, a native of Pennsylvania, N. J., at Media.

Married life did not prove so sweet, divorce hearing in the case revealed and yesterday Judge Hiram H. Keller granted a divorce in the case of "Sweet against Sweet" on the grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment.

Mrs. Sweet lives at South Langhorne, and the last known residence of Joseph Sweet was 1114 Ovington street, Philadelphia.

Immediately after the marriage cruel and barbarous treatment began, the libellant complained.

Judge Keller granted a divorce in the case of Mrs. Edna S. Zeller, of Richlandtown, against Wallace A. Zeller on the grounds of desertion on November 14, 1925. The wife was married at Perkaskie and the desertion, it is alleged, took place the same day.

On the grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment, Mrs. Anna Marie Rudiger, of Upper Black Eddy, was granted a divorce from William Cropper Rudiger, 54 Winant street, Ellen Park, Staten Island. The marriage took place on August 2, 1927, at Graniteville, Staten Island.

The petition of Franklin G. Mann, of Silverdale, for a detective's license, continued from a recent hearing was called again to hear additional witnesses.

Arthur B. Stover, of Blooming Glen, testified that Mann's reputation was "very good," and that a demand existed for such an officer in Blooming Glen and vicinity.

Mann explained to Judge Keller that he desired to open an office in Doylestown for the purpose of doing watchman's service and patrol duty in the county and special detective work in the factories of the county. Mann is now a special officer at the Keasby-Mattison Company plant at Ambler.

Frank Knoll, Walter S. Kulp and Samuel W. Musselman, of Perkaskie, and William S. Wimmer, of Silverdale, testified in behalf of Mann, as to his reputation.

Judge Keller in refusing the appointment said:

"An application of this kind was before the Court a year ago and refused. I see no reason why the decision should be changed. The petition is refused."

Mann was at one time a constable in Silverdale.

Thomas Smith, colored, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller to a charge of stealing chickens from the farm of D. Clifford Yerkes, Southampton, on October 26. Smith was sentenced to pay a fine of $5 and costs and serve four months in the county prison.

"You have a pretty expensive appetite for chickens," Judge Keller told Smith.

"I see hope its broke now yu honor," Smith answered.

Judge Samuel E. Shull, of Stroudsburg, handed down two opinions in the Court of Common Pleas.

In the case of Joseph Snyder, claimant, against the Philadelphia Pure Rye Distilling Company, Judge Shull dismissed the exceptions and directed the decision of the Referee affirmed by the Workmen's Compensation Board is sustained and appeal dismissed.

In the case of Sarah A. Allen, claimant, against E. J. Romig, and Son, defendants, the exceptions were dismissed and the decision of the Referee affirmed by the Workmen's Compensation Board is sustained and appeal of claimant dismissed.

Judge Keller directed Charles William Moyer, of Milford township, to pay his wife $3 a week toward the support of a three-year-old child and enter into bond in the sum of $300 to comply with the order.

Edgar Blakley, of Bristol, was before Judge Keller on a charge of desertion and failing to support his wife, Mabel Blakley, of 1510 Trenton avenue.

Mrs. Blakley testified that her husband choked her and threw an alarm clock at her. The home, she said, was the center of drunken week-end parties. She said that domestic troubles started when she refused to drink with her husband.

The defendant, a bridge worker, testified that he makes $51.40 a week. He said he left his wife last April because she is living with another man at Bristol.

Judge Keller directed that Blakley pay $5.00 a week toward the support of his child.

Before Judge Shull in No. 2 court, Parker Reed, arraigned on a charge of desertion and non-support, was discharged and the costs placed on the county after it had stated that Reed is now living with his wife. When Judge

AMERICAN HOMES THE BEST

"Providin' a home" in the United States has become something more than a house, some furnishings and two store accounts, in fact the average home of today boasts of more conveniences, more luxuriant furniture and many more luxuries than the best homes in the smaller cities and towns of a score of years ago.

A bungalow or a "parlor, bedroom and bath" meant one thing with the last generation but means quite another thing with the present. There is more for contrast than comparison.

So revolutionary has been the advancement in the American standards of living that there is little solace for the young men and women who today embark upon the sea of matrimony in such a frail craft as "thirty-a-week" and one payment down on the furniture. Even the old-timers are finding themselves daunted by the new domestic demands.

How dazzled would our ancestors be upon entering a middle-class home of today with its overstuffed furniture, fine rugs, tasteful mural furnishings, pianos and phonographs, perhaps a radio, fine table service, relatively large libraries and with a garage and automobile in the back-yard. Surely not without less cause than for common folks of today to be dazzled by the luxuriance of a millionaire's mansion or a king's palace.

There seems little foundation for the oft-repeated lamentation that the American home is losing its attraction. On the other hand there are few today who can see where the home of the nineties or the early twentieth century possessed any attraction other than as the traditional place to eat and sleep. But then the home-detractors have undoubtedly progressed step-for-step with the home-attractions.

Why shouldn't the American people be the most contented, the most peaceful, the most ambitious and the most enlightened people in the world with such home surroundings?

CONCERNING HOLIDAYS

Some day somebody somewhere will be moved to utter a warning against the unlicensed multiplication of legal holidays. The more holidays we get, the less inclined people are to take them seriously. A few enthusiastically observed would be better for the object intended than many indifferently celebrated or neglected altogether.

New Year long ago lost its significance for most people. Even the public schools usually do not close for Lincoln's birthday or for Columbus Day. Comparatively few observe Thanksgiving as a religious festival. Even Memorial day has become more a touring and outing occasion than one for remembering those who saved the Union.

If legal holidays are to be merely occasions for escaping work they might as well be distributed evenly through the year. It would simplify matters, for instance, to have a specified day of every month made a legal holiday, taking its name in case from some historic anniversary occurring within the month.

Who will be first seriously to suggest a revision of holiday schedule in the interests of a harassed and confused mankind?

Friends are people who forgive everything except great success.

AGAIN KONJOLA GIVES PROOF OF ITS POWERS

Man of 71 Tells of His Remarkable Experience With This New and Different Medicine

MR. FRANK CASNER

"At seventy-one I began to fear that my age was against me; for everything that I tried had failed utterly to relieve the kidney trouble and constipation with which I had suffered for years," said Mr. Frank Casner, of Gap, Penna. "Every night I had to get up quite frequently, and the loss of sleep told heavily on my general condition. I had to take laxatives all the time and these did me no good."

"Konjola lost no time in getting to the root of my troubles. In just three weeks a complete change came over me. The night-rising ceased; the back pains left, and long before the three bottles of Konjola were taken the chronic constipation was ended. I'll say that Konjola is a master medicine."

Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffman's Cut Rate store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

Copyright, 1929, Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.
This novel is based on the Warner Bros. & Vitaphone Natural Color Picture. Adapted from Avery Hopwood's play, "The Gold Diggers."

SYNOPSIS
Violet, a chorus girl, and her fiancé, Wally, enlist the aid of Jerry, understudy to the star, in getting the consent of Wally's uncle to their marriage. Jerry, anxious Uncle Steve to mistake her for Violet, and assumes the role of a scheming woman so that he will be happy to let someone else marry Wally. Blake, Steve's lawyer, suggests that they take Jerry out to get acquainted before making a final decision, and Jerry's friend, Mabel, comes along. The gold-digging starts, and is brought to a climax by a party which Steve is to pay for. Steve discovers how Jerry has lied and leaves her in anger. On the night when Jerry is to go on in the star's place, Steve comes to see her.

CHAPTER XII—Continued

"Mabel, it's wonderful, and I want you to know how happy I am for you," Jerry assured her.

"I know you mean it, kid. And before you know it, you'll be telling me some such story—about—somebody."

Jerry began to cry again.

"Say—I thought you were through with that."

"I thought so too. But I can't help it."

"What are you going to do. Stand out there on the stage and burst out crying? A nice star you're going to make!"

"I'll be all right by tonight, Mabel. I've got to have time, you know. I wonder where those kids are?"

"It seems too good to be true," said Violet.

"They're probably hoarse talking to him."

"Yes, we always knew he was stubborn."

"But something tells me," Mabel said, "that he's going to say 'yes' to them. At times my intuition does work right."

"I hope you're right—for their sakes."

At the insistence of Mabel and Mrs. Lamar, Jerry was persuaded to take a much needed rest before the performance. When she awoke, she seemed unusually composed, even though a trifle pale. After a quiet dinner, they drove to the theatre early so that Jerry would have plenty of time to dress and look over her lines.

Almost at the same time that Jerry, Mabel, and Mrs. Lamar left the house for the theatre, Violet and Wally were hailing a taxi in front of Uncle Steve's house.

"Perhaps we'd better go to see Jerry first," suggested Wally. "She's still home, isn't she?"

Violet agreed. Yes, they could catch her there and drive to the theatre with her and tell her the whole story.

Seated in the taxi, Wally took Violet in his arms and kissed her, and she looked up at him smiling.

"Wally, isn't it marvelous?"

"I'll say. Why, we've got the old boy eating out of our hands."

They kissed again.

"It seems too good to be true," said Violet. "To think that after all this time, it's come out our way."

"And imagine it! He even promised us a nice wedding present."

"Of course," Violet reminded him, "it did take us all afternoon to convince him that he should give his consent."

"I wouldn't care if it had taken us a week. The important thing is that we got it! And I'm getting the greatest little girl in all the world."

"Oh, darling! I hope you will at ways feel like that!"

"Will I?" he said, sweeping her into his arms again and kissing her eyes and lips. "I'm going to be so proud!" he told her.

"And so will I," she whispered, laying her head on his shoulder.

"Darling, Violet went on.

"Yes, dear."

"How can we ever repay Jerry for helping us?"

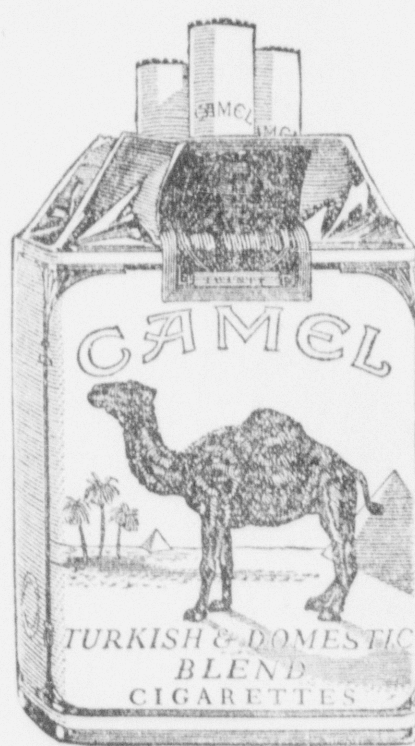

"We can't ever repay her. The only thing we can do is to be eternally grateful."

"Try the 'phone book, buddy," he had been advised.

why smokers graduate to

CAMELS—

The phrase "I've Graduated to Camels" originated with a Camel smoker. It expresses the experience of millions who through Camels have learned to know real smoking pleasure.

As taste in smoking develops, it naturally leads toward better quality. New smokers may not be critical but when they once experience the true mildness and surpassing fragrance of the Camel blend, they realize that here is a real superiority. It is for smokers of such discernment that Camels are made . . . for them the choicest tobaccos are selected . . . and this quality is maintained for the millions who know genuine smoking pleasure.
